Jonathan Huneke is responsible for USCIB’s strategic communications, including media relations, publications, online content and high-level public events. He also manages the work of USCIB’s Marketing and Advertising Committee.

Huneke rejoined USCIB in 2000, having previously served as a program manager covering foreign investment and intellectual property matters, among other issues. In the intervening period, he was a U.S.-based representative of the Canadian province of Quebec, acting as corporate liaison and public affairs manager during the period surrounding Quebec’s 1995 sovereignty referendum.

He holds a bachelor’s degree from the New School for Social Research and a master’s degree from Georgetown University’s School of Foreign Service. Huneke is a member of the Overseas Press Club of America, Public Policy Communicators of New York City and the Public Relations Society of New York.

Helpful links:
USCIB Marketing and Advertising Committee: http://www.uscib.org/index.asp?documentID=826