Josefa Sicard-Mirabal serves as Director of Arbitration and ADR in North America for the ICC International Court of Arbitration. In this capacity, she represents and promotes ICC dispute resolution services in the United States and Canada, and advises North American attorneys and companies on all phases of arbitration, including negotiation of arbitration clauses, requests for arbitration, procedural issues and enforcement of arbitration awards.

Ms. Sicard-Mirabal commenced her legal career as a small claims court judge and subsequently as Chief Justice of the Civil, Commercial and Labor Court in the Dominican Republic. She continued her practice in the United States, first at the law firm of Thelen, Reid & Priest and then as Of Counsel at Winston & Strawn and Greenberg Traurig. Her experience includes representing clients in a vast array of international business transactions, including mergers and acquisitions and securities matters. She has also acted as counsel on numerous international arbitrations and litigations under the tutelage of Gerald Aksen.

Since 2011, she serves as an External Member of the Sanctions Committee of the Inter-American Development Bank and currently sits as an arbitrator on multiple FINRA cases.

She is an Adjunct Professor of Law at Fordham Law School in New York City teaching Introduction to Investment Arbitration and has been a guest lecturer at Harvard University School of Law, Columbia University Law School, Boston University Law School, Northwestern University School of Law, and the Law School at University of Florence, Italy, among others, lecturing on international commercial arbitration and investment arbitration.

Ms. Sicard-Mirabal is a recipient of many awards, including being named one of the “20 Leading Latinas in Business” by Hispanic Enterprise magazine in its September 2007 issue, one of the “100 Most Influential Hispanics” by Hispanic Business Magazine in its October 2006 issue. She has appeared on numerous television programs, local and foreign newspapers, and is frequently asked to speak at public events and seminars.

Ms. Sicard-Mirabal received a law degree from the Pontificia Universidad Católica Madre y Maestra, Santiago, Dominican Republic. She continued her legal studies at Fordham University School of Law in New York. She is admitted to the New York State bar and the Dominican Republic bar. She speaks English, French, and Spanish.
